‘THE ANTIDOTE IS LOVE’: ARCHBISHOP GOLKA HIGHLIGHTS FAITH-FILLED WITNESS AT SNOWY COLORADO MARCH FOR LIFE

The meteorologically appropriate revision of Daniel 3:52-90, led by Denver Archbishop James R. Golka, rang out from the Colorado State Capitol through Downtown Denver on Friday morning as hundreds gathered to pray and witness to the gift of life at the annual Colorado March for Life. Though temperatures and hefty snowflakes plummeted in Denver, spirits remained high.

“What a wonderful witness to the beauty and the dignity of life that so many hundreds, thousands, even of Coloradans have come out here. Rain, shine, snow, we are always out here ready to advocate for pre-born children and their mothers,” said Brittany Vessely, executive director of the Co Catholic Conference.

“For people to show up, it tells you we don't care what the weather is. We want people to know that we're here for women and children and that we are happy to be here together. To me, it's a lot of joy here because we're celebrating something. We're celebrating life,” added Dr. Catherine Wheeler, an OB/GYN and a board member of Pro-Life Colorado, a coalition of pro-life organizations across Colorado.

“Faith is everything, and I lean on the Lord Jesus Christ for everything. He gives me the strength to be out here and obviously in the snow. He's going to be here to keep me warm, and the Holy Spirit's going to be with me, and you know we're here in joy to show people that life is joy, and joy is life,” added Elena Jones.

A Prayerful Beginning

The day began with Mass at the Cathedral Basilica of the Immaculate Conception in Denver, celebrated by Archbishop Golka, concelebrated by Bishop Jorge Rodríguez and archdiocesan priests, and offered for life. In his homily, the archbishop emphasized the radicality of that gift.

“Who would not want to march for life? Who would not want to stand up and say life is a gift from God?” he asked at the start of his homily. “We have received it. We did nothing to merit it or earn it. We must steward it well, care for it, out of charity and love, and hold up the life of those around us. Who would not want to do that?”

“A March for Life is not just a couple of minutes of walking through the streets of Denver. A March of Life is an image of our life, how God made us. Our whole life should be a March for Life. Our whole lives should be a life where we recognize that everything we receive is an utter gift of God,” he said, pointing to the early Church fathers who taught that God’s continuous love for us is what sustains us in existence; if he were to stop thinking of us, the archbishop noted, we would cease to exist. “That's how much we depend upon God. That's how much we receive everything as gift. To receive everything as gift is how we live our life, that's the arc of our life. Make your entire life receiving all the gifts that God wants to give you, so that you can share those gifts and have those gifts.”
